

"Glen Rose, Texas"

(Linda Marie Fischer)

(Phil Fischer)

The dust is a million years old,
just like us, they left their home.
In search of their gold,
pastures green.

Giants gulped the water down,
not knowing their renown.
They lumbered down their path,
until the sky unleashed its wrath.

[Chorus]

Eternity is a footstep left in the mind, from times we thought we'd never find.
But as the earth and the ground kept us there,
we found the early air!

The crashing force the will that was,
froze in time to make a town.
Because that's what nature does,
you can't clamp it down.

There's something godly in the place,
na'tral beauty,
whoever made it was an ace.
But who it was some have their doubt,
as the lum'bring giants lie about.

[Repeat Chorus]

This place is a blast,
straight out of the past.
Painted with white ash,
Hollywood & Vine.
Elvis on the second floor,
may I say more?
A mechanical bull in a ring,
a few beers and the boys sing.
Juana in the square, fireflies in the air.
Loco Coyote, bikers galore.
Barbecue and rock,

"Glen Rose, Texas" (continued)

(Linda Marie Fischer)

(Phil Fischer)

a rim and a park,
safaris make their mark,
it was arrow straight through the heart.

The swirl of life, all the glitter.
Day and night, I'm all atwitter.
We move on a trail not much new,
we are like them, we are the few.

But for now we frolic,
and forget the fright.
Glen Rose is beautiful
in the starlight.

[Repeat Chorus]

[Repeat Chorus]

[Repeat Chorus]